ALLIED FORCES ADVANCE IN THE ALEUTIANS

Strategic Victories Push
Enemy Back in Alaskan Waters

Allied forces continue their drive in the Aleutian Islands, securing key positions and
cutting enemy supply lines.

Fierce weather and rugged terrain test the strength and resolve of the men fighting on America's last frontier.

FORGOTTEN MEN. FORGOTTEN WAR. UNWAVERING PURPOSE.

Even though they preferred being called ‘Alaskan Scouts,’ this elite group quickly earned the title of ‘Castner’s Cutthroats.’

Recruited into the U.S. Army by West Point graduate Colonel Lawrence Castner, they came from the banks of the mighty Alaskan rivers – mines buried deep in frozen mountains, native villages carved from the tundra, and the vast, unpredictable Bering Sea.

After the bombing of Dutch Harbor following Pearl Harbor, they came willingly—men known by names like ‘Bad Whiskey Red,’ ‘Doc,’ ‘The Aleut,’ ‘Shup,’ ‘Diamond Jim,’ and ‘Water-bucket Ben.’ Each brought a unique set of skills shaped by the unforgiving land they called home.

CASTNER'S CUTTHROATS

SATURDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 27, 1943.

Their mission was simple in design but deadly in execution:

to infiltrate the Aleutian Islands, scout Japanese positions, assess enemy strength, and guide U.S. forces through terrain no conventional army could survive.

These were not traditional soldiers. No uniforms. No formations. No Insignia

They lived off the land because the land lived in them.

They climbed into cramped submarines, swam through freezing waters, and risked everything to give American forces the advantage.

As the battles for Attu and Kiska raged, Castner's Cutthroats were already there—watching, reporting, and ultimately leading the charge to reclaim the Aleutians.

A campaign history would nearly forget ... but one that helped protect America's West Coast.

THIS IS THE STORY OF THE FORGOTTEN WAR

MAJOR THEMES

- ★ PATRIOTISM
- ★ LOYALTY
- ★ BRAVERY
- ★ RUGGED INDIVIDUALISM
- ★ HONOR & INTEGRITY

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

- ★ Pearl Harbor attacked December 7, 1941
- ★ America was at war with Japan, Germany and Italy
- ★ The West Coast of the US lived in fear of invasion
- ★ The Japanese occupied Attu and Kiska Islands as a jumping off point to invade the West Coast of the US
- ★ The attention of the US was on the Pacific and European theaters, but the battles in the Aleutians were ignored, even though they were closer to home for many Americans
- ★ This became known as "The Forgotten War" even though it probably saved the West Coast from being attacked

THERE SHOULD BE A HIGH LEVEL OF REALISM IN THE FILMING – GRITTY AND STARK

CASTNER'S CUTTHROATS

COLONEL Lawrence V. CASTNER

Age 46

Athletic and strong, a dedicated leader who graduated from West Point and competed in fencing at the 1924 Olympic Games. Tough, but compassionate who realized the scouts under his command could not be treated as ordinary soldiers.

Willis BAD WHISKEY
RED Credon

Age 38

With a full red beard with a head of hair to match, Bad Whiskey knew how to live off the land. Wearing animal skins as his uniform, he was extremely strong and would drink anything even resembling whiskey, hence getting the Bad Whiskey nickname. Credon was the only Cutthroat to be killed, shot dead on the beach by a Japanese sniper.

DOC KENDRICK

Age 34

In the Army, but not “of” the Army, Kendrick was the best educated of the Cutthroats but nowhere near a soldier. Called “Doc” because of his medical training, Kendrick was an intelligent, dedicated patriot who could skin a seal and play chess with equal skill.

Earnest Clyde SHUP
SHUPERT

Age 27

The fisherman of the group, Shup was a tough, no nonsense, down-to-Earth man who worked hard, but talked little. He wore a full beard over a sinewy, weather-beaten body which housed a heart full of bravery, loyalty and strength. The grandfather of Johnathan Hillstrand of the TV show The Deadliest Catch.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Primary Audience

Adults 34 and up who enjoy premium historical dramas and WWII content.

Core Appeal

Fans of authentic, character-driven narratives, real-world history, and brotherhood under fire.

Global Reach

Strong appeal across North America, Europe, Australia, and New Zealand

WHY NOW?

UNTOLD STORIES. UNIVERSAL IMPACT

There is always an interest in WW 2 stories and especially ones like this that are rarely told. Not only is our show historically significant, it ties into the renewed feeling of pride in America that seems to be taking hold in our land.

Also, it's another great example of the sacrifices made to give the freedoms and benefits that we enjoy today. Honoring these men gets their stories told and hence gives them the recognition they deserve.

Most Americans love that.

Joren Christensen

In April 2014, Joren launched his screenwriting career by co-writing The Short Game, which was released in theaters and is now streaming on Amazon Prime and the Angel Channel. He later partnered with Steve Dini to co-write and produce The Great Turkey Town Miracle, also released theatrically and now available on multiple platforms. Joren additionally co-wrote and produced Didymos, which is currently unreleased. Originally from California, he now resides in McKinney, Texas with his wife Wendy, while his two adult daughters live in Seattle and San Jose. With multiple credits and ongoing projects, Joren brings strong creative expertise to Castner's Cutthroats.

Steve Dini

A relocated Californian now living in Texas, Steve has written or co-written 14 feature or short scripts, 6 of which have been optioned with one (The Great Turkey Town Miracle) which he co-wrote with Joren, now streaming on Amazon Prime after a theatrical run. Steve loves the Cutthroat story and truly feels this is a tale that needs to be told again and again.
